Definitions

"Family" - all persons living in the same household who are related by birth, marriage or adoption.

"Low- and Moderate-Income Person" - a member of a family having an income equal to or less than the Section 8 Income Limits, as established by HUD. Unrelated individuals shall be considered as one person families for this purpose.

Examples

Within a residential structure, it is possible to have one or more families, and thus, each person's status as low- and moderate-income or non-low- and moderate-income, must be based upon their family income.

The following examples are provided to guide your completion of the survey.

Example No. 1

Particular house (single unit structures) within surveyed area where three employed single males reside, not related by birth, marriage or adoption. In this case, there are three one-person families and each person's income determines whether they are a low- and moderate-income person, based upon the Section 8 income limits for a one-person family.

Example No. 2

Particular house (single unit structure) within surveyed area where an employed man resides with an employed woman and her two children. The man and woman are not legally married, however, the man has access to the entire house and financially contributes to the support of the woman and her two children. In this case, the four people would be a family, and the income of both the man and woman would be considered in determining whether they were low- and moderate-income persons, based on the Section 8 income limits for a four-person family.

Example No. 3

Particular house (single unit structure) within surveyed area where a family of four rents a room to an employed man unrelated to the family who does not have access to the other rooms in the house other than a bathroom. In this case, there is one family of four and a one-person family, each of which are determined separately as to whether they are low- and moderate-income.
